

WorkKeys - National Career Readiness Certificate

WorkKeys® [1] is a career skills assessment tool that builds and measures an individual's workplace skills in 3 core subjects: Applied Math, Workplace Documents, and Graphic Literacy. Employers believe these skills to be essential to job success.

APPLIED MATH

Critical thinking, mathematical reasoning, and problem-solving techniques in workplace situations. High levels of this skill include:

IDENTIFYING
errors in calculation

CONVERTING
systems of measurement

CALCULATING
areas and volumes

GRAPHIC LITERACY

Reading and comprehending graphical materials to solve work-related problems. High levels of this skill include:

INTERPRETING
trends, relationships, and patterns

COMPARING
information and trends among data sets

USING DATA
to make decisions

WORKPLACE DOCUMENTS

Reading and comprehending written information to make decisions and solve problems. High levels of this skill include:

INFERRING meanings of words and phrases from contexts

DECIPHERING
the meaning of acronyms, jargon, or technical content

APPLYING
information and instructions to a new situation

A person must test in these 3 subject areas and score a level 3 or better in each WorkKeys® assessment to earn a National Career Readiness Certificate (NCRC). Depending on a person's score, certificates are awarded in the following levels:

Bronze, Silver, Gold, and Platinum. Individuals can add their certificates to their resumes to show they have the readiness skills for work. Businesses use the NCRC on Guam and nationwide to select, hire, train, retain, and promote.

Guam Law, P.L. 31-254, also requires a mandatory skills assessment for GovGuam employment to help ensure and sustain a community workforce prepared for current and future jobs.
